

a circuit means, including a power control means, comprising said power supply and said light module means for controlling the application of a voltage to said lamp;

application of a voltage to said lamp;
said power control means, including an activator means and an electrical controller, for controlling said voltage applied to said lamp;

said activation means fastened to said case through said first opening.

Add >